Billy Sunday Cemetery near Ames, Iowa

This is also called Cory Burying Ground and was located on the Templeton farm south of Ames, east of present Highway 69. It may be reached by going through the city sewage disposal plant, going down a long flight of steps and through a vacant plot at back, then to fence which surrounds a wooded area. This fence has 3 barb wires on top, but can be climbed. The graves are enclosed in a high board fence too rotten to attempt to climb. There probably were other graves outside the fence which were never marked or have had the stones broken. Some were undoubtedly moved to Ames Municipal Cemetery.

There were two illegible stones outside the fence, also parts of a third:

Broken stone - Finch son M & M d Sept. 1865 age ?- 3M-5d (probably son of Francis M & Mary Watt Finch who were married 1860

Two or more broken stones - one probably Cathrine Watt

The graves inside the fence were those of the relatives of Billy Sunday. Some stones had sunk into the ground because of insufficient foundation and were somewhat illegible.
